Staff Profile: Stephen and Bethany Slater

Stephen grew up in the Ivory Coast where he excused himself from soccer to spend time in his family's library; Bethany grew up in Scottsdale, Arizona where she often hid from her chores with a good book. They met at Hillsdale College in Michigan over a question about the nature and purpose of the church. After completing their Philosophy degrees they spent their first year of marriage in Oxford UK. Bethany toiled through her Masters in Jewish Studies with the help of innumerable cups of tea, and Stephen explained America to curious English colleagues. Last year they moved to Jerusalem for Stephen's Masters in Jewish Civilization at the Hebrew University. They have come to love Jerusalem's history-lined alleys and eccentric religious communities. In the future, they hope to teach others about Christianity's Jewish context. In May, Bethany accepted a position with JCF as newsletter editor and assistant to Yoni Gerrish with JCF Biblical Study Tours.
